

Anthony Soohoo, Chief Executive Officer

Anthony Soohoo is the CEO of MoneyGram International, a leading global financial technology company connecting communities worldwide. He leads with a focus on customers, innovation and operational excellence, driving the growth of MoneyGram's digital and retail capabilities to deliver sustainable, long-term value. With over 25 years of experience in technology, AI and digital transformation, Anthony has been an entrepreneur, board director and leader at several Fortune 100 companies, including Walmart, CBS, Yahoo! and Apple.

Prior to joining MoneyGram, Anthony served as Executive Vice President at Walmart, where he led the multi-billion-dollar home division and played a key role in driving one of the largest digital transformations in history. At CBS, Anthony spearheaded the company through a period of hyper-growth with the launch of its first streaming service. As an entrepreneur, he founded Dotspotter, which was successfully acquired by CBS, and Dot & Bo, now part of Alibaba.

In addition to his role at MoneyGram, Anthony currently serves as Lead Independent Director of Spryker Systems, an enterprise PaaS company with clients such as Toyota, Daimler, Siemens, Bosch and Nespresso. He also serves on the board of Civio.ai as AI Fund's board designee.

Anthony holds an MBA from Harvard Business School and a bachelor's degree from the University of California, Davis. He is an established thought leader on business and entrepreneurship, and his achievements have garnered significant recognition, including a spot on the Hollywood Reporter's "Top 50 People in Digital Media" and one of the Chicago Tribune's "19 Trailblazing Asian American Businesspeople." He also holds six patents, three of which are in artificial intelligence.